

Talk about things your child is looking at

This is because:

- It is best to talk about what your child is doing.
- To learn the right words your child needs to hear you say the words that go with what they are thinking.

Avoid talking about what they are not looking at

This is because:

- This child will be thinking about the car but may hear you talk about the plane (if they are listening at all)!
- At a young age, children find it hard to change quickly what they are looking at and thinking about.
